

History

The Italian counselling and judicial defence system dates back to the late 1700s, when the enlightened despotism of pre-liberal Tuscany anticipated some of the conquests of the French Revolution.

A short time after the unification of Italy the "Avvocatura erariale" was established. It does not have a precise English equivalent, but can be roughly translated as "Office of Treasury attorneys".

The name changed from "Avvocatura erariale" to "Avvocatura dello Stato" (consistently with the fact that it was now also charged of the defence of the State in the exertion of its authoritative functions); special rules were introduced, concerning the territorial competence of tribunals in cases involving the State.

Avvocatura dello Stato Bologna

*The State Attorney's Office is the legal body of the State to which are assigned duties of legal advice and defense of the State Administrations in all civil,
criminal, administrative, arbitral, community and international judgments.*

Functions

The advisory function carried out by the State Attorney, constitutes the form of technical assistance complementary to the representation and defense of the judgments of the Administrations sponsored by itself, including all interventions and initiatives not related to legal litigation in the narrow sense; It translates into collaboration with a public institution for the purpose of resolving technical-legal and interpretative issues, which is suitable to illuminate in advance and to corroborate in the legality and operational fairness the body or body assisted in carrying out its administrative action on Date materials.

The competence to issue opinions is entrusted to the competent territorial jurisdiction in relation to the constituency of the applicant institution.

Projects

It is possible to do a free internship of two years at the Avvocatura dello Stato, which allows to be admitted to the exam of private lawyer and as well to be admitted to the public competition to be appointed Procuratore dello Stato (even if, in this second case, the internship of 2 years is not necessary; in fact, one can participate to the public competition directly after the degree in law).

The State Lawyers can participate to the courses of professional training organized for the magistrates every year.

Avvocatura dello Stato is also hosting students from Bulgaria for the month of April to work and gain experience about their specialities in the National High School of Commerce and the administrative documents in the Avvocatura.
